DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after allowance or after an Office action under Ex Parte Quayle, 25 USPQ 74, 453 O.G. 213 (Comm'r Pat. 1935). Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, prosecution in this application has been reopened pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 10/15/2004 has been entered.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1, 3-10, 12-14 are allowed.

Claims 1, 3-10 are allowable over the prior art for at least the reason that even though the prior art teaches ND filters having a gradation thickness distribution, the prior art fails to teach or reasonably suggest a method of manufacturing a ND filter comprising the step of subjecting the substrate after film formation to heat treatment in an atmosphere pressure and at a temperature of 100°C to 130°C, as set forth by the claimed combination.

Claims 12-14 are allowable over the prior art for at least the reason that even though the prior art discloses ND filters being affixed to aperture blades, the prior art fails to teach or reasonably suggest an aperture device comprising a plurality of aperture blades, an ND filter fixed to the aperture blades, wherein the ND filter comprises a film of at least one layer which is formed on the substrate and has a gradation thickness distribution, as set forth by the claimed combination.

The ND optical filter disclosed by Erz is used in conjunction with optical communication devices, and there is no connection to optical apertures and aperture blades. The wedge optical filter of Krekeler comprises a colored gelatine layer, hence it is not an ND filter. The ND filter disclosed by Yanagi (US 5,479,298) varies not in thickness but in width (lines 56-58, col. 9). Tada (US 6,078,442, Fig. 3) discloses a ND filter, which may be used with an aperture device. However, the thickness of the filter varies in a discrete and not in a gradation way. Finally, Murata (US 2004/0135921, Fig. 2) discloses a ND filter having a gradation thickness distribution, which is affixed to an aperture device. However, the above reference is not prior art due to its effective filing date.
